QPIRG-McGill Board Nomination Package

ABOUT QPIRG-McGill

The Quebec Public Interest Research Group at McGill (QPIRG-McGill) is a non-profit, student-run organization that conducts research, popular education, and action on environmental and social justice issues at McGill University and in the Montreal community. With such a broad mandate, QPIRG-McGill brings together a wide range of people interested in many different issues.

QPIRG-McGill is run by a volunteer Board of Directors responsible for QPIRG's management, budgeting, project development, staff, working groups and vision. In addition, the Councils of the Students' Society of McGill University (SSMU) and of the Post-Graduate Students' Society (PGSS) each have one representative on the Board.

Mandate

The broad mandate of QPIRG-McGill is to help McGill students link up with the broader Montreal community through social and environmental justice organizing; since 1988, we've served to bridge the gap between the frequently isolated McGill community and the rest of the city, through the social and environmental issues that affect all of us. QPIRG-McGill works from an anti-oppression framework, seeking to oppose all forms of oppression as they play out within society at large as well as within our work. Oppression can be defined as the institutionalized, systematic, pervasive, day-in, day-out, mistreatment of a person or group of individuals based solely on their race, sexual orientation, gender, age, class or ability.

QPIRG History

Public Interest Research Groups (PIRGs) were initiated by American consumer activist Ralph Nader and they began on American and Canadian University campuses in the 1970s. Today, there are over 200 PIRGs across North America, all autonomous groups with the broad mandate to advocate for social and environmental justice. In Montreal, there are PIRGs on the McGill Concordia and UQAM campuses; QPIRG-McGill was the first PIRG in Quebec established in 1980.

QPIRG Membership

McGill students are members of QPIRG-McGill because they pay a $3.75 per semester membership fee. Students and community members run QPIRG-McGill; there is a volunteer board of directors who determine the direction of the organization and what we fund. There are annual elections to join the board, as well as an Annual General Meeting where the membership can be involved in the governance of the organization. Members are welcome to attend board meetings and join committees; all of the organization's documents are open to the membership.

QPIRG-McGill is autonomous from the SSMU and the PGSS and has a different mandate than the organizations that work under SSMU (namely, linking campus and community). However, QPIRG-McGill and SSMU have historically worked together on a number of different projects, including Culture Shock and Social Justice Days (more below), two annual event series.

Consensus-Based Decision Making

QPIRG-McGill aims to be a non-hierarchical, inclusive and democratic organization. As part of this goal, QPIRG-McGill uses consensus-based decision-making, which allows for the full and active participation of all group members. Instead of working by majority rule, consensus decision making works to include everyone's input into decision making processes and encourages quieter participants to speak up, while encouraging more dominant voices to listen.

Volunteers

Volunteers can help plan fun and educational events for social and environmental justice, participate in inspiring campaigns, maintain the library, offer translation, childcare and help with publicity. Volunteers can be community members or students. If you are a student, you might even be able to get course credit for volunteering, by planning ahead and doing it as an internship.

Board of Directors Description

What does the QPIRG-McGill Board do?

There are twelve (12) positions on the QPIRG-McGill Board, at least six (6) of those positions must be filled by McGill students who have not opted out in the last two semesters prior to joining. Non-students or community members can join the QPIRG-McGill Board, but they must have volunteered with the organization for at least fifteen (15) hours in the last year. If you need more information about membership or being a Board member, please contact QPIRG-McGill or consult our Board Policy, Bylaws and/or Elections Policy (all documents available to our membership). QPIRG-McGill works as a non-hierarchical organization.

Role of the QPIRG-McGill Board:

- Support the work of QPIRG-McGill's popular education, community research and working groups
- Sit on the core committees of QPIRG-McGill
- Be part of the planning, visioning and setting of priorities for the organization.
- Act as the employer of QPIRG-McGill staff as defined by the QPIRG-McGill bylaws and board policy
- Represent the organization on campus and in the community
- Work collectively with the staff to oversee the work of the organization.
- Help QPIRG-McGill perform socially and environmentally meaningful work.

Board members cannot receive any remuneration for their work at QPIRG-McGill.

No experience necessary to join the QPIRG-McGill board, but some skills and experiences would be an asset:

- Ability to work well and communicate within a volunteer based, grassroots, non-profit setting
- Experience with consensus decision-making and non-hierarchical organizations
- Experience with drafting policy
- Conflict resolution skills
- Awareness of and investment in issues of social, economic and environmental justice.
- Knowledge of QPIRG-McGill or its working groups
- Some understanding or experience with anti-oppression mandates

You can gain skills!

Many skills can be gained or improved through your participation on the QPIRG-McGill board. These include:

- Consensus decision-making
- Facilitation
- Education on various social and environmental justice issues and organizations in Montreal
- The nuts and bolts of small non-profits
- Skills in budget development, grant writing and fundraising
- Policy writing
- Mobilization and outreach

Equity Statement for the QPIRG-McGill Board:

QPIRG values the contributions that individuals who identify as members of marginalized communities bring to our organization. We encourage Indigenous people, people of colour, people with disabilities, people identifying as LGBT*QI, women, immigrants and people from working class backgrounds to apply. We recognise that this list is neither exhaustive nor representative of the intersectionality present within each individual. We encourage these individuals to run for the Board of Directors, and to describe their unique contributions in their applications.

How much time is required?

The board requires a time commitment, which sometimes varies from week-to-week, but generally looks like:

- 3-5 hours a week
- Increased time commitment during core QPIRG events or programs, especially in early September
- Serve on the board from April 3rd, 2014- AGM 2015.
- One 1-2 hour meeting or training every other week (must be able to stick to a 'fixed' meeting schedule, which changes at the beginning of every semester).
- Participation in at least one committee

Committee Work

Committees are an important part of the ongoing work of QPIRG-McGill. Some of the current committees are

- Staff: The staff committee plays a crucial role in maintaining good communications between staff and board. This work is a less visible but integral part of board contributions to the QPIRG-McGill.
- Finance: This committee's mandate is to give direction on financial decisions, advise the board on financial matters, develop transparent and accessible financial practices, and maintain a more in-depth understanding of QPIRG's financial position than is possible at the general board level. They are also responsible for cheque signing.
- Popular Education: The Popular Education Committee at QPIRG -McGill organizes diverse activities throughout the year, including films, workshops, panels and speakers. Open to the membership at large.
- Outreach & Media: This committee aims to make students and community members as informed and involved with QPIRG-McGill. They work to inform people about the history and ongoing social and environmental justice work of the organization, as well as ensure that other portrayals of the organization on campus are as accurate as possible. Open to the membership at large.
- Legal: The mandate of this committee is to assist the staff at the QPIRG-McGill with legal matters such as MOA negotiations.
- Policy: The purpose of this committee is to review, update and develop policy to better the functioning of the QPIRG-McGill.
- Community University Research Exchange (CURE): CURE is a database by which students can integrate their academic research with the work of local movements and activist organizations. The CURE project includes an active committee, which supports CURE and the community groups, students and professors involved with the project.

Other Board Responsibilities:

Fiduciary Duties:

- Skill: in carrying out obligations, board members are expected to use an appropriate degree of skill. This means using the skills each board member has to make competent decision on behalf of the organization.
- Diligence: board members are expected to attend meeting and to become as fully informed as possible regarding all aspects of the QPIRG-McGill operations, including any issues that affect the organization.
- Loyalty: Board members must act with honesty and in good faith in what they reasonably believe to be the best interests of QPIRG-McGill. Board members must act with loyalty at all times. Loyalty includes:
 - o Honesty: disclosing benefits and threats to the organization.
 - o No Conflict of Interest: Board members cannot place themselves in a situation where their duty as a Board member conflicts with their interest or with their duty to others.
 - o No Personal Profit: Board members may not profit in any way from their relationship with the organization
 - o Confidentiality: Board members are expected to keep confidential matters including (but not limited to) sensitive personal information about members, applicants, former members, employees of QPIRG, and anything specifically determined by the Board to be confidential. When a Board member is uncertain about whether something is a matter of confidence, they should seek direction from the organization.

Once you become a board member, you are also responsible for the following:

QPIRG-McGill board members are responsible for the operation of the organization within the confines of the bylaws, mandate and established policies. In most cases, the Board will be assisted in these responsibilities by staff. Specific Board duties
